"Ships that pass in the Night, and speak each other in passing,
Only a Signal shown, and a distant Voice in the Darkness;
So, on the Ocean of Life, we pass and speak one another,
Only a Look and a Voice, then Darkness again and a Silence."

COCANADA:

PRINTED AT THE GODAVERI COLLECTORATE PRESS.

1895.

"Baby has passed into the far-away Thought-World.

"Baby is now only a dream and a memory, only the recollection of a music that is heard no more.

"Baby has crossed that cloudy, stormdriven bourn of speculation and fear whither we are all tending.

"Baby is planted out for evermore in the dank and weedy little cemetery that lies on the outskirts of the station where he lived and died.

"Those golden curls, those soft and rounded limbs, and that laughing mouth are given up to darkness and the eternal hunger of corruption.

"Through sunshine and rain, through the long days of summer, through the long nights of winter, for ever, for ever, Baby lies silent and dreamless under that waving grass.

"The bee will hum overhead for evermore, and the swallow glance among the cypress. The butterfly will flutter for ages and ages among the rank flowers —— Baby will still lie there."

POLAVARAM DIVISION.

POLAVARAM.

The Divisional Officer, Mr. Spencer, writes as follows :—

"At Polavaram there are six tombs within a walled enclosure. There is no inscription on any of them, so it is impossible to give the names of the deceased. Tradition says that they are the graves of European soldiers who fell in the fituri of Mangapathi Devu. Five of the tombs are disc shaped, and the sixth is triangular which, rumour says, is the grave of the son of the Colonel who led the troops. The cemetery is being repaired from time to time at Government expense. Personally I am inclined to favour the idea that the graves are those of native sepoys as from page 272 of the District Manual it is said that several sepoys were killed at the taking of Polavaram Fort about the year 1800 during Mangapathi Devu's rebellion. Colonel Gardiner was, it seems, in command, but there is nothing to lead one to suppose that European troops were engaged; but the account says that an officer was wounded with an arrow on his return from Kondrukota to Polavaram subsequently. In the year 1858, there was another fituri in Polavaram Division in which several sepoys died of jungle fever. The gallows on which the rebels Subbareddi, Kommireddi were hanged are pointed out in Polavaram to this day, but tradition says that the tombs are more than 50 years old which makes it more probable that they belong to the former year."
